

2015 COLLEGE HONOR ROLL

The College Honor Roll is a list of approximately 300 institutions which offer supportive environments for students whose family earns less than $50,000 per year. This list is based on analysis by ScholarMatch, a San Francisco-based nonprofit that connects underserved students to resources, knowledge, and the community to make college possible.

About the College Honor Roll

ScholarMatch used public data from the US Federal Government and other public college data collection sites to evaluate 1400 schools in four main areas: financial aid, academic strength, student support services, and post-graduate success – with specific consideration given to low-income students’ needs. The schools that earned strong scores in these categories are featured in the College Honor Roll to recognize the excellent educational opportunities they offer. Schools that earned a perfect 4.0 score are denoted with a .
